MISS GERANE WITHERINGTON, 18 year old high school girl of Lynn, Mass., pictured as she made ready for an ambitious attempt to roller skate all the way to Miami, Fla.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Poor old Cordell Hull is having a run of bad luck. With his chief bete noir, Professor Moley, and his clan out of the way, he now has another appointee slipped over his head.

The latest is George Peck, retiring chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Peck is given the job of negotiating tariff bargains with foreign countries to promote the export of American farm goods.

The irony of it is that for a decade Cordell Hull sat on the Ways and Means Committee of the House, opposed Republican members in boosting tariff rates, became the greatest tariff authority in the Democratic party.

Now for the first time in his life Hull gets a chance to lower tariffs—and Peck is put over his head to do the job.

DEVOVED TAMMANYITE

Antonio Gonzales, American minister to Panama, owes his appointment to his good friend Baron Baruch, but he is even more devoted to Tammany Hall. So much so that when Mayor-elect Fiorello LaGuardia recently visited Panama, Gonzales secretly tried to put a crimp in his reception.

He sought out President Arias, advised strongly against an official welcome to the Zion visitor. Arias, who knew LaGuardia as a militantly liberal Congressman and regards him highly, was amazed.

"But, Mr. Minister," he protested, "Major LaGuardia is the mayor-elect of your city, the largest in the world. In your newspapers I read that the office of Mayor of New York is the third most important political post in America."

"He is only mayor," Gonzales explained. "Tammany has got the power. It is still boss of the city."

President Arias was unimpressed. He not only personally welcomed LaGuardia, but gave a big reception in his honor, had the city of Panama make him an honorary citizen.

Ward M'Racken On Council of E.B. Clothiers

OAKLAND, Dec. 20.—Passage of a resolution urging that all dealers in men's and boys' clothing, insofar as possible, adopt Schedule B—the 44-hour work week, was approved at the annual meeting of the Eastbay Association of Retail Clothiers, Furnishers and Hatters, held here when the following officers for 1934 were elected:

President, Mr. Grodin of Oakland; vice president from Sixth Congressional District, J. J. Kreig of Oakland; vice president from Seventh Congressional District, Herman Rosenberg of Berkeley; treasurer, Harold Smith of Oakland.

The association is composed of dealers in men's and boys' clothing in Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.

Approval was given to the following appointments from the Ready-to-Wear Division of the association to the Eastbay Retail Council:

M. Grodin, Harold Smith and J. J. Kreig of Oakland; Ward M'Racken, Richmond, and George J. Good, Berkeley.

Mira Vista Club Plans for Events

Coming events were planned when directors of the Mira Vista club held their meeting recently.

F. A. Webster, Jr., chairman of the membership committee, reported that membership is growing; B. X. Tucker, tree planning chairman, reported on plans for planting trees. The club also voted to sponsor a Boy Scout troop.

FIGHT OVER MONEY ENDS IN DEATHS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—A San Francisco rancher today shot and killed a San Francisco money lender and then committed suicide. The shooting followed a quarrel over a mortgaged horse left to the rancher. He explained the trouble. The brother was round up by police.

FATHER OF TWO

They are John Grinikoff, 46, a San Francisco police officer, his mother, and Michael O'Neil, 21, son of the deceased.

It is not known if the father of two children, one of whom is a daughter, a student at the University of California.

NOTE FOUND

A note found tucked on a table in the room explained the murder and suicide.

Surprised by O'Neil's arrival, he called him over and demanded payment of his mortgage. I showed my good will by agreeing to pay the interest in January, he became abusive and demanded full payment right now. I couldn't pay it all. He insulted me and I warned him not to do again.

DEMANDS FASH

I don't remember how long ago he demanded full payment of the note. I showed my good will by offering to make a payment on the interest in January.

After the ceremony the graduates were honored guests at a number of receptions held in private homes and elsewhere.

Anderson Is Indicted For Farr Murder

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—UP—The law moved swiftly today toward prosecution of Eddie Anderson, one of slayer of Eddie Farr, in a holdup of the Curran theater, who was captured in a holdup of a lot of names. I warned him I could not stand an attempt to rob a bank after I got him out.

SAN FRANCISCO

After the note was found tucked on a table in the room, he was struck by all present.

Accordong to Eddie Tracy and Joe Pesci, he was presented during the evening and Santa Cruz appeared to distribute gifts.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR, well known oil operator, who was subpoenaed to appear before the Senate Banking Committee to testify about his part in a mammoth stock market pool that netted its participants a profit of over $11,000,000 in 1929.

PRECINCTS MISSING

Final compilation of votes by United Press in yesterday's special election, with only isolated precincts missing, showed 7382 out of 8059 precincts, Yes 423,066; no 395,564. Many of the missing precincts were in remote mountain districts where snow or impassable highways delayed returns.

QUESTION LEGALITY

A hint that the fight against the project had not ended was seen when legal authorities at Los Angeles raised the question of legality of the special election. It was argued that possibly the vote was subject to attack over the question of submitting a bond issue in the form of a referendum, thus evading the legal requirement that bond issues must be voted by a two-thirds majority.

A mass program was presented during the evening and Santa Cruz appeared to distribute gifts.

The affair was opened with an invocation by Rev. A. J. Case of the Wesley Methodist church.

Songs and dances were presented by the following students of the Balboa Dance Studio: Blakely Dickinson, Lloyd Dickinson, Kenneth Nystrom, Jack Washburn, Bill Peacock, Dan Hinkey, Dick Hinkey, Verdiette Goodrich, Paul Wells, Betty Lou Adair, Ruth Raynor, Lena Arapin, Anna Beth Garside, Lucille Griffith, Barbara Nystrom, Louise Washburn, Eddie Damon and Lee Perry.

Community singing at Christmas time was also enjoyed by all present.

Accordong to Eddie Tracy and Joe Pesci, he was presented during the evening and Santa Cruz appeared to distribute gifts.

All members of the council participated in making the affair a success.

Galileo Club In Plans For New Year Fete

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—UP—The late Miss Margaret Keith, who left her $337,000 estate to a nephew in Oregon, vacillated between a quixotic generosity and a bitter distrust of those about her, according to the testimony given today by Paul M. Woods, her brother-in-law.

Called as a witness for other relatives contesting Miss Keith's will, Woods testified that Miss Keith's treatment of him varied between an impulsive offer to give him $50,000 and a pistol-emphasized demand that he return a much smaller gift and leave her house.

Miss Keith died last spring of self-administered chloroform. After leaving a will bequeathing all but a few dollars of her estate to Albert C. Allen, Jr., Oregon rancher, a nephew she knew only slightly, relatives claim. They attacked the will on the grounds that Miss Keith was mentally unsound at the time it was drawn.

Ceiling Hit
By Quintelas
at Dog Track

Wilkie Wonder vs. Sylvia's King! A greyhound match to the finish! That might be the billing on tonight's special match event at El Cerrito Kennel club track. Ten classy greyhounds are entered. Chief Hanson, one of the prominent favorites, is making a belated debut, but in this event, he will be hard pressed with such dogs as Trajane Laddie, Happy Ladie, St. Hazealous, Mail or Gold, Pay Roll, Dangerous Mark and two heelers—Wilkie Wonder and Sylvia's King—in the running.

Quintelas hit the ceiling again Wednesday night at El Cerrito. Skinny Life of A. N. Rhine's kennel and Abe Co-ta's John's Heron, well played, brought $102.60 in the first while K. F. Silas' New Flame, winner in two of three starts, and Jew Shadow, a 3 to 1 favorite, were worth $105.20 in the second. So it went, with outstanding dogs bringing remarkably high returns in the cedula department. The better greyhounds, regarded by experts to win or to close up, are generally the ones to bring the biggest rewards. It's uncanny.

Around The Sacks With The Bushers
CHARLES GLUM

The only game played in the Richmond Winter League Sunday may have quite a conflict in the scheduling of games during the second half round of play. Last Sunday's only contest saw the Palace酒店 overwhelming the Rockford Old Folks.

How the schedule makers will complete the booking of the remaining games is a puzzle. A perfect meeting of the local managers may be called this week and at that time the matter straightened out.

Both center fielder and Goldsmith, neither of whom continue to do well for the Lambrecht, have played only one game for that team in which he has come hot. Goldsmith has played well in every game except one, and that, unfortunately, was the direct cause of his club's 5 to 1 loss to the Palace Markets.

There is no telling how the teams may turn in the second half round of play. All of the teams seem to be well balanced with the lamers doubled as the weakest club in the loop. At that, Manager Brown's appreciation may surprise if they play ball behind the front of "Lefty" Orr, Orr's ranking rank, top notch in the city league. Local batters find his delivery at times hard to solve.

Give this boy Wickeser, shortstop for the Alis Cigars a great big hand. Starting the Winter League season he was placed in the outfield as it was believed Breckin was importation, a more valuable man of the post. Bill soon found his way back to his natural spot and has clicked like a charm. Herly Horne saves about Bill's work at the bat and in the shortstop.

Steve Le Gault is being sought by two clubs in the local city League. It is rumored he is a free agent and if this is true the Standard Field and End zone will be no time in signing him.

Take a glance at the box scores after games and you will find the name of Les Scarella prominent in the summary. Scarella, star player for the Cigars, rarely goes a game without two or more hits. The wallopers are usually for two or more bases. At the same time look up towards the top of the same lineup and you will find the name of Prolo, second to him. His error column is nearly always empty.

Charlie Matti, handler of the corner for the Standard Field and End zone, is gradually coming out of a bad slump at the bat. His willow whip helps the Cigars tremendously in the remaining games on their list.

Pete Scrilick continues to set the pace for other pitchers in the local winter loop to shoot at. Pete has failed to lose a game. He has finished every start and has won up to now.

NORGARD IS RULED OUT OF SOUTH CONTEST

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20 (UPI)—At Norgard, all coast end, we today declared ineligible to play against Columbia in the South Coast Conference meeting for the missing Greg Engelhardt, a 16-year-old who has claimed running honors this season in nine meet, twin fashion, paired with 100-yard and 200-yard "Home" Cougars of two campaigns at center.

This announcement was made by Prof. W. B. Towns of Stanford, who ruled out the outstanding thimble, Norgard, whose coach, Edward Rockwell, a newcomer to the conference, is believed to be the missing Greg Engelhardt, a 16-year-old who has claimed running honors this season in nine meet, twin fashion, paired with 100-yard and 200-yard "Home" Cougars of two campaigns at center.

One Stanford professor made the announcement of the loss of Norgard at a meeting of Pacific Coast Conference representatives at the San Francisco Press club. The men in Bay of Norgard extended throughout in playing career at Stanford. His case had been presented previously by Prof. Owen, but all the facts had not been learned and hence he was ruled only from the Rose Bowl.

Owen said he would have ruled Norgard ineligible at time of the Santa Clara protest had he known all the facts.

Norgard's case was brought up at a later meeting of Stanford, University of Santa Clara graduate manager, incurred into the conference. One reason that Norgard had been ruled at Stanford in October of 1929, when September 16 of the same year had occurred at Stanford, Norgard gave him no information on players at Stanford and Owen received his findings to Hugo C. Willett, or University of Southern California, chairman of the faculty division of the conference.

Willett, lacking a precedent, did not bar Norgard.

JOINT YULE PARTY HELD BY LODGES

Meeting at the Richmond Temple of Pythian Fraternal Order, the Central Coast Chapter of Pythian Sisters, entertained last night at a joint Christmas party held in Protheroe Hall.

The affair was attended by a large crowd, which enjoyed a delicious program. A large tree occupied a prominent spot in the ledge hall.

At the conclusion of the program, Santa Claus, himself, appeared and distributed presents to all the children present.

The Boy Scout troop sponsored by the Pythian Lodge were also guests during the evening.

A W. M. Parker headed the committee in charge of the affair.

CANTATA TO BE GIVEN AT CHURCH HERE

The large choir of the First Christian church, well known for its fine music presentations, will present Holst's beautiful Christmas cantata "The Cradle of the Holy Night" next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

This will be one of the rare musical offerings of the season. Chorus Prodigy director will present his sole appearance. Miss Madge Turner, soprano; Mr. Grace McFetters, wonderful contralto; Walter Moore, tenor; and Prunie Bonham, bass.

Besides the usual musical singing in the choir, this extra feature will be a number of solo madrigals. Miss Andra Nell Wilson, concert violinist, will be featured in class, organ solos, and Mr. C. C. Chapman, organ offering from the old organ.

Visiting Matron Is Paid Honor At Charming Party

Mr. Thomas Shelton was hostess of a pretty birthday party last evening at her home in honor of Mrs. L. Hesley of Hollywood.

An evening of games was enjoyed including an old fashioned spelling bee. Mrs. J. T. Lee acted as teacher and the honors went to Mrs. C. L. Adams. Light refreshments were served by Miss Shelton.

Those present were Mrs. L. G. Bonham, Mr. Lucetta Young, sister of Mrs. Hesley; Mr. and Mrs. Delmas Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Roe and daughter, Maxine; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lee and son, David; Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Bonham and son Clarence; Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Bonham and daughters, Gaynelle and Billie Louise; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams the host and hostess; Mr. and Mrs. Shelton and the honoree, Mrs. Hesley.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And you'll jump out of bed in the morning ready to Go!

If you feel weak and puny feel the world over, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, antiseptics, candy or chewing gum and expect me to make you suddenly sweet and strong and full of sunshine.

Take one half teaspoonful of Kruken-Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning and go about your work.

It will move the bowels and get rid of the waste products. It will also help to clean the liver.

Your Good HEALTH

Further Explanation of Secondary Types of Anaemia

FROM the remotest hamlets to the greatest metropolis, men find inspiration and joy in one thing—beauty. One small package containing face powder, a pot of rouge as soft and natural and lovely as life or tiny phial of perfume may bring romance and courage and a ray of hope to a woman otherwise barren life. Let us then—

MISS HUNT. I am fortunate once a year to have beauty for Christmas! It costs so little and it brings so much in joyfulness and happiness.

There are so many things that we can give that bring loveliness to the one receiving them. They are not all large things—they could be jars of rosy bath salts, fragrance with cedar oil, or deep tinted ones that look like deep, mysterious pine woods are stimulating and give a sense of luxury and ease at a very small cost. China is another favorite—so it is lovely yellow bath powder or you can buy large rainbow containers filled with bath salts that have all the sweethearts of Oriental flowers.

Then the new compacts may have everything from a snuff powder compartment at one side to a miniature swansdown puff, rouge and a tiny lipstick. There are other vanity cases that come in shining metal with plastic material inset in designs. These you can file with powder or rouge and there's a matching lipstick and a perfume container that you can carry in your pocketbook.

While you are looking for gifts at the many gay combination sets, that include powder, bath powder and perfume compacts, perfume and lipsticks or perhaps everything from cleansers and skin tonic to bath accessories.

Some of the grandest things but a bit more expensive are the lovely travelling kits. Some of them are made with the equipment for beauty on one side and room in the other for a mighty or clean hosiery or what have you. There's another trim blue and white kit that you will enjoy putting in someone's stocking. It contains cleaning cream, skin lotion, make-up foundation cream, cleansing tissues and face powder.

Even a cake of delicately scented soap from a noted house that costs little more than a Christmas card will bring more joy than any number of so-called practical gifts to most women. There are beauty gifts for the men of the family, too, and even for baby. For baby there are combination sets of gentle oatmeal soap and a talcum that couldn't injure the most delicate skin but it makes it soft and fragrant and lovely. I'll tell you more about these beauty gifts in tomorrow's column.

ANSWER TO QUERY

Dear Miss Hunt: I work in an office and must handle carbons and such grimy things all day long. As a result my hands look terrible. I have to wash them often, so they are rough and easily cracking and my nails are brittle and ribbed. I can't seem to keep my nail tips white. I spend several hours taking care of them each week. Have you any suggestions?—M. H.

Answer: Your ribbed, brittle fingernails may indicate that your system lacks lime or some other essential element. If so, then your physician should advise you about your diet. You can add the nails—and hands—externally by using warm olive oil. Massage the oil well into your hands and give special attention to the nails. A special nail oil may be used around the cuticles if you wish. A daily application of oil and a massage should leave your hands and nails smooth and improved in three to four weeks.

Blanching your nail tips is difficult when your work makes them smoky so many times a day, but you can use peroxides to help. Wrap a small bit of cotton around an orangewood stick, dip in peroxide and use to scrub under the nail tips. You will also find the nail whiteners shaped like a pencil a great help. After washing your hands, pat off a little of the water but leaving the nails wet. Run the pencil under each nail and finish drying your hands. Use a hand lotion after each washing and massage it well into your hands.

Timely Tips

A piece of orange skin placed on top of the range will take away heavy cooking odors and give a pleasing fragrance all through the house or apartment.

A wad of absorbent cotton moistened with a little cold cream should be bound over the calluses with strips of surgeon's plaster, making a soft pad for the bottom of the feet. At night, the soaking and rubbing should be repeated. Rub the feet well with softened cocoa butter or castor oil and slip on a pair of old stockings for the night.

FEAST PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS

By JUDITH WILSON

AS INSURANCE against disappointment the last minute before the big Christmas feast, order your fowl now and plan the rest of your menu around it. You have probably made up your guest list already, so you will know how large a bird you will need. Your butcher will appreciate your cooperation and your turkey, goose, capon, or other fowl will be waiting for you in plenty of time for the holiday.

Picking the Fowl

These smaller fowls, too, for deciding on your bird and ordering it now. Each kind of fowl demands its own particular kind of accompaniments, and if you are going to have the right things on hand and have as many of the ingredients as possible out of the way before the big crowd of Christmas, it is a good idea to wash them off. As a result my hands look terrible. I have to wash them often, so they are rough and easily cracking and my nails are brittle and ribbed. I can't seem to keep my nail tips white. I spend several hours taking care of them each week. Have you any suggestions?—M. H.

A never failing remedy for calluses is to wear a piece of adhesive plaster applied over the epoxot. This softens the skin and at the same time protects it from friction.

Home-Making

By ALINE STERN

The new carpet sweater is self-adjustable. That is, it accommodates itself to the crossings of different thicknesses. The hem maker is very useful for cleaning floors, sweeping them from the floor to the ceiling, from the ceiling to the floor, from the floor to the wall, from the wall to the ceiling, sweeping or brooming the dining room, to vacuum rooms with an inch piling rug or carpet. It is said to sweep all floors clean.

"Who has seen the wind?" "Does anyone know where the broad knife is?" If a hemmaker has a set place for kitchen instruments she does not have to ask such frantic questions. A cattley jack need only be placed in a convenient spot till given a convenient sharpener. Wife an efficient friend. One such seen includes a knife sharpener and hooks for kitchen shears, as well as places for hanging a bread knife, two dinner knives, two forks, a utility knife and the spatula.

If you have a broad spatula, use it as a pancake turner.

Wipe off the rubber roll of the window with a cloth wet with gasoline and they will look like new.

Lord D'Abernon, English Financial Wizard, Also A Great Ambassador

ONE of England's most interesting diplomats is Lord D'Abernon, the towering, unsmiling scholar who more than anyone else helped to bring the Anglo-German alliance between Great Britain and Germany after the World War. Sir Edward D'Abernon was in welding Anglo-German amity as Britain's first ambassador to Berlin immediately after the great conflict, that contemporary historians predict will go down as one of the greatest envoys of the century.

A sportsman, soldier, student, financier and connoisseur in the arts, Lord D'Abernon fits well into British aristocratic tradition. His long career in British society and diplomatic circles reveals him as a man of amazing versatility. He is one of those fortunate men upon whom success descends regardless of what he undertakes. At what we understand ranges from financial reconstruction to horse racing.

When he was a young lad at Eton, where he had made a name for himself as a brilliant student and outstanding athlete, he enlisted in the Coldstream Guards. While his colleagues played cards in the barracks or studied military tactics, the twenty-three year old newcomer turned out a Greek grammar that became a standard work in English schools for years.

In those days Lord D'Abernon was known as Edgar Vincent, descendant of one of Britain's oldest families. He resumed his studies and became a shrewd financial and economic expert. Then when he was only twenty-one he was appointed to represent England, Belgium and Holland on a council supervising the reorganization of Turkey's public debt.

THE trouble arose, as far as onlookers can see, by each meddling into the affairs of the other. Not so much their private affairs as the duties allotted them. The dressmaker complains of time wasted in helping with housework, the housekeeper complains of no remuneration for the hours spent in the workroom.

TEMPERAMENT NOT AN EXCUSE FOR HOME RIFT

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

HERE am I called upon to referee a most complicated and unfortunate situation between two women who rushed into housekeeping together with very little knowledge of each other's character.

On the face of matters the emerging picture seems very favorable. That they figured only on material things and took no account of the human equation is the reason for their plight. Temperamentally, they were as badly suited as two women could be, yet curiously enough, neither saw it nor would they pay the slightest attention to the misgivings of those who knew them.

A woman, widow of a young man just out of Eton, where he had made a name for himself as a brilliant student and outstanding athlete, he enlisted in the Coldstream Guards. While his colleagues played cards in the barracks or studied military tactics, the twenty-three year old newcomer turned out a Greek grammar that became a standard work in English schools for years.

In those days Lord D'Abernon was known as Edgar Vincent, descendant of one of Britain's oldest families. He resumed his studies and became a shrewd financial and economic expert. Then when he was only twenty-one he was appointed to represent England, Belgium and Holland on a council supervising the reorganization of Turkey's public debt.

BEFORE long their finances were muddled, in fact there had never been a definite understanding of what was expected of the other. "Sharing expenses" was too vague a term for a working basis. It needs a very literally interpretation. This, unfortunately, these two misguided women failed to give it. The result, and in a surprisingly short time, was discord and finally a separation.

After all we are not married," laughed one in the beginning. "we can break up at any time." Easier said than done, it developed. The affair naturally involved landlord, tradespeople, the disposition of furniture, not to mention the continuance of the business. It would have to be a serious situation, one might think, to make such drastic changes necessary. Two sensible grown-ups would hardly subject themselves to such an upheaval over a trifle, yet that is exactly what happened.

IT IS an example of this character that make the woman in business at times something of a laughing stock. Men often remain partners after a violent clash of temperament, keeping cool and quiet for the benefit of their mutual business. Men might even share the same dislikes after finding that they were not sufficiently in accord to do so, amicably, although the spouses are all against their ever forming any such close alliance until they were pretty sure that they could make a go of it.

VIOLENT tempers are always to be deplored. They are bad enough at all times, but when one puff blows the house down, there is something wrong not only with the house, but its occupants. Unfortunately though, if two women seem unable to occupy the same house without having its foundations shaken now and again by either sobs or blasts of temper.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "Should ices and frozen puddings be eaten with a spoon or fork?"—I. P. W.

ANSWER: With a fork.

QUESTION: "When a young man and young woman meet, should the young man ask to call on the girl, or should she ask him to call?"—Geo. V. G.

ANSWER: Either way is correct. The young man may ask, "May I call some evening?" Or the young woman may say, "Would you like to drop in for tea next Sunday afternoon?"

QUESTION: "When should ices be served?"—B. N.

ANSWER: It should follow the soup course.

BUT are women like that? Rather not. Even when the tempests blow over and their tears of reconciliation have mingled, things are never the same. It's a sort of bad-tempered prosperity. The world has little patience with women who have to curb on their tongues or tempers and who rush in where angels fear to tread, and out as quickly and with as little cause.

If you don't know the other woman, at least know thyself.

FIGHT OVER MONEY ENDS IN DEATHS

He kept right on. Then I got the gun and locked his mouth."

Ugolnikoff was shot through the chin, the bullet coursing upward into his brain.

SEEN NO. 302

A second note was also found on the table in this house, Osetinsky told authorities no one was to blame for his own death.

"I have been a good American and have done my best to pay debts and have been loyal to President Roosevelt who is a great man," he had written. Both notes were signed by his full name, Michael Osetinsky.

Osetinsky was alone at the time Ugolnikoff appeared, his wife and son having left earlier in the day for Berkeley to bring the daughter home from the university.

Funeral Sermons
THE ANCIENT EGYPTIANS HELD A "TRIAL OF THE DEAD" TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE DECEASED HAD EVER COMMITTED ANY WRONG THAT WOULD PREVENT HIS BURIAL IN THE SACRED CAVERNS. IF THE CORPSE WAS ACCUSED, MANY FLOWERY SPEECHES WERE MADE TO INVOKE DIVINE FAVOR ON ITS JOURNEY. LATER THE CHRISTIANS IN ANCIENT ROME ADDED THE CUSTOM OF MAKING LAUDATORY SPEECHES OVER THE DEAD, AND THIS LED TO OUR MODERN FUNERAL SERMONS
